

I urge you to reject the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking #02-230, which would limit the functionality of digital television sets. I have yet to purchase an analog TV, but I certainly wouldn't buy a digital one if I can't use it as intended.

Bugger off with broadcast flags. I'll get Tivo instead and do as I please on my computer.

Piracy is a valid concern, but that doesn't mean I have to be a slave to the TV broadcast times. I'll watch when I want, if I can find the time. The broadcast flag proposal is fascist.

The entertainment industry continues to stumble into the digital era. Don't let them use the power of government to stop the future. The market is best suited to address and weigh these competing concerns and the FCC should give it time to work.

By the way, kudos on the report for market allocation of spectrum. If you make that happen, then there is no need for FCC "oversight" to force design decisions for products onto consumers.

Let the customers vote with their wallets for the technological solutions to these problems.
